June 2014 Newsletter

Dear Friends,

I hope this note finds you in good spirits as you enjoy summer in the 51st District.

It's officially kayak season on the LA River, and I plan to be out there again this year to explore. In the wake of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers recommendation of approval of an ambitious $1-billion plan for LA River revitalization, our communities here in Northeast LA are getting a lot of buzz. This is a great moment - let's not waste it. My staff and I have been hard at work on my Assembly Bill 1922, a measure designed to empower local governments to develop urban greenways like the one planned around the LA River. The bill has passed the Assembly and is now moving through the Senate, but we need your support. If you love the LA River like we do and want to see it transform our neighborhoods, show your support by signing the petition to support AB 1922.

The big news out of the Capitol is that the legislature passed the best budget California has seen in a decade. As the Assembly Majority Whip, I am honored to be part of the leadership team that helped pass a balanced budget, and I'm happy to report that we are investing in education and social services while paying down debt, with a rainy day fund to carry us through uncertain times.

This past month, we also saw the passage of AB 1147, my bill to overhaul regulation of the massage therapy industry. The issue hits home in the 51st District, where communities have found themselves powerless to address the proliferation of illicit businesses. With the Massage Therapy Act of 2014, we mean to change that and put regulatory authority back in the hands of local government, where it belongs.

As our bills move through the Senate and we plan for the next legislative session, we will keep you posted. And as always, we want your input - tell us what's working, and what can work better in your communities; share your vision for change with us and let's keep the dialogue moving.

Sincerely,

Jimmy Gomez
Assemblymember, 51st District

What is an Urban Ag Workshop all about?

The Urban Agriculture Green Infrastructure Plan seeks to create a healthy, sustainable neighborhood in the CASP. A successful greening plan will be impactful, implementable, identifiable, and sustainable. It will also lead to the identification of several potential projects within the study area that will be viable and attractive to potential green developers. We will have interactive activities to capture your feedback as well as a hands-on backyard gardening station.

Join us to learn about and provide input on Urban Agriculture Green Infrastructure opportunities in the Cornfield Arroyo Seco Specific Plan (CASP) area. Thu Jun 26, 2014 11:27 pm (PDT) . Posted by: asncaalert

Important information to keep your pets safe.

A dog's hearing is 10 times more sensitive than a human's, so the fireworks are likely to cause your dog some anxiety, stress and fear.

Here's what you can do in the hours leading up to the fireworks.

Plus, what to do if you notice your dog is overly stressed by the loud noises and bright lights.

As a responsible dog owner, you should do everything in your power to protect your dog on this night filled with loud bangs, pops and sizzles.

Remember, your dog's hearing is 10 times more sensitive than yours!

10 City to explore downtown bike path inside L.A. River channel

Councilman Jose Huizar pushed for Los Angeles to explore filling in an eight-mile gap in the L.A. River bike path. (Irfan Khan / Los Angeles Times)

By Catherine Saillant

June 25, 2014, 4:10 PM

An eight-mile gap in the Los Angeles River bike path could be closed under a proposal that the City Council agreed Wednesday to explore despite concerns about heightened injury risks and maintenance costs..

Voting unanimously, the Council without comment asked city engineers to study the feasibility of building at least three access ramps that would allow cyclists to pedal through downtown from the Elysian Valley to Maywood, a longtime hole in the bike path network.

The review would look at costs and designs as well as concerns by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers that it could be dangerous to permit the public into a channel intended to capture stormwater.

Ordering the study also brings closer to fruition a long-held goal of cycling enthusiasts, river advocates and environmentalists: another way to commute to downtown without getting in a car.

Yuval Bar-Zemer, a downtown loft developer and board member of Friends of the Los Angeles River, said filling the gap would create a ready-made transit line from roughly Griffith Park to Long Beach. Bar-Zemer said he has commissioned studies showing that, depending on design, rain would make the path inaccessible an average of five days a year.

Friends of the Los Angeles River and other bike path supporters would make sure it is as safe as possible, he said.

"We are committed to putting in a warning system to make it significantly safer to ride in the river channel than to drive the 10 Freeway," he said.

Lewis MacAdams, co-founder of Friends of the Los Angeles River, said advocates have long sought to connect the downtown portion of the bike path. But rail companies own much of the bankside property that has been used to create other chunks of the trail.

The Corps of Engineers have also cited concerns that an in-river path is too risky. But the federal agency in recent months has softened that stance during public meetings on the project, MacAdams said.

"The Corps of Engineers, at least the commanders in the Los Angeles division, have come to put the river into perspective and not to see it as an enemy that has to be controlled at all costs," he said.

Martin Schlageter, director of planning policy for Councilman Jose Huizar, who sought the city action, said the design of the bike path would be a critical part of the review. "It could be elevated a little bit from the channel floor," he said.

In addition to the city, the project would need approval by the Corps of Engineers and the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors.

NBC/Universal, in exchange for a development agreement, recently agreed to extend the existing bike path northwest from Riverside Drive to Lankershim Boulevard by 2016. If the downtown portion is completed, cyclists would enjoy 35 miles of continuous bikeway.

Backers hope to eventually build bike paths along the entire 51-mile length of the river.

Huizar's proposal dovetails with the city's $1-billion long-term push, with the Corps of Engineers, to refashion an 11-mile stretch of the river channel north of downtown from a giant concrete drain into a pedestrian, recreation and bike-friendly preserve.

The ambitious federal project, backed by Mayor Eric Garcetti, was recently approved by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and awaits funding approval by Congress. Construction of the 6th Street Viaduct, connecting downtown to Boyle Heights, is also in the works.

11 A "Welcome to Atwater Village" sign on Fletcher Dr.?

A "Welcome to Atwater Village" sign on Fletcher Dr.? The AVNC Outreach Committee will be discussing this possibility with artist Brett Goldstone.

Submitted by Sergio Atwater, Village Neighborhood Council

Do you have any ideas for a "Welcome to Atwater Village" sign? Well, the Atwater Village Neighborhood Council Outreach and Communications Committee would like to hear it. We've invited Brett Goldstone, the world renowned artist that designed the various gates that lead into the L.A. River, to explore the possibilities of this exciting venture. The AVNC Outreach Committee is seeking input and partnership with other neighborhood organizations to help enhance Fletcher Drive.

You're invited to join us on July 7th, at 7:00 p.m., at 3852 Edenhurst Ave., Los Angeles, CA 90039 (Christ's Church at Griffith Park), to explore the challenges it's going to take to place a sign at the rock island on Fletcher Drive.

This is just one element of a much larger long stalled plan; we need your help to move these projects forward. For more information, or a copy of the full agenda, please visit our web site at atwatervillage.org.

By EGP Staff Report

Hundreds of people gathered Saturday morning at a former empty lot on York Boulevard and Avenue 50 in Highland Park to witness the groundbreaking for a new park.

The upcoming York Park is the most recent community improvement getting underway as part of the community's York Vision Plan, in partnership with councilman Jose Huizar.

The workings of the plan, launched in 2010, focus on improvements along York Boulevard, which so far include the city's first parklet and first bike corral.

Huizar worked with recreation and parks, Los Angeles Neighborhood Initiative (LANI) and Living Streets L.A. to get $2.875 million in State Prop 84 funds for the improvements. Also, the LA Parks Foundation through the Wells Fargo UrbanLIFT Community Park Grant has contributed more than $3 million in funding for the new park.

"As an elected official one of my most important tasks is to simply listen to what the community wants and then go out and find the resources to turn those wishes into reality," Huizar said. "That's what we did for the York Boulevard Park, working alongside our partners. I am thrilled for the Highland Park community," he said.

Park plans include a children's play area, community plaza, picnic area, open green space, trees, a "smart" irrigation system, a walking loop with adult fitness equipment, restrooms, LED security lighting, a mini amphitheater and a public library book drop among other features.

The park is expected to open by 2015.
